They seem determined to overcome all obstacles, and determined to overcome all obstacles, and in a short time the streets of the city wil be repaired and all the drainage perfect. They are the only people I ever saw that were pleased with their city government.

Dr. Porter, the Mayor, has the con dence of every man, woman and child in the city, and whatever he does is right. It requires more time, than I have to spare to give you an account of what has been done in Memphis in the last six months— affect its any that Memphis will be all suffice it to say that Memphis will be a right in another year, if Yellow Jack don make his appearance this summer. CHURCH MATTERS.

Last Sunday I heard Mr. Trimble, an old Bethany student, preach. The pulpit of the church was elegantly decorate with rich flowers. Mr. Trimble has im proved very much in his oratory since h left Bethany, and is beloved by his con gregation. I met a great many elegant people at the church. Mayor Porter Judge Plippen, Mr. Gale, the merchant Prince of Memphis, and many others—in fact I have seldom met a more elegar EN BOUTE FOR NEW ORLEANS.

At 2:30 P. M., in company with Me Reed, a merchant from New Orleans, left for that city via, Granada. Sunda evening the train was not crowded unti we passed the small town of Sardis, Miss. Some few miles down the road we cam some few miles down the road we came to a little town where some two thousand colored people had congregated to attend the funeral of some distinguished colored preacher. They had come up the road some fifteen or twenty miles from Granada, to attend the funeral. My friend Reed and I were the sole occupants of the ear until the colored people rushed in en car until the colored people rushed in en masse until the car was crowded from end to end. There was no escape for us. There was one noticeable feature of this crowd of colored people, and that was the richness of their dressing. In fact, many were elegantly dressed. I called my friend's attention to the fact that there was not a shabbily dressed person among them. Now these clothes were all

I met one Tilden man, Colonel Briggs, who invited me very kindly to go to the New Orleans club and assist in starting a Tilden boom. The people are all for Haucock. If there is a people in the United States who ought to be for Tilden, it is the people of Louisians. They would have traded off their chance in a better world for State government, and the removal of troops from their mids.

The men who would have refused to do any thing to at-tain that end would have been banished from the State—more on this point at some future time. I must bring this hastily written letter to a close, and will say in conclusion that the Negroes are all working. There will be six millions to the credit of 1880. I will be in Cincinnati on the 22nd of June, to see the next President nominated, and I have no doubt that the Democratic party will control the great Confederacy of states for the next fifty years. I never want to spell nation with a big "N."

From conversations held with prominent business men I find the general impression is that iron had reached its bottom price. The large dealers in mails, without a single exception, expressed the opinion that he nail mills has the matter in their own hands and could advance the card if they felt disposed, and could hold the price at a reasonable rate—Stock of nails is broken—and dealers trade from day to day rather than give orders for new lots. They claim the mills could have maintained a $4 rate, and had agood trade the year through. Some feeling exists against the mill owners who met and put down the price—after making large sales—the parties having the nails in transit. Law suits may arise from such transactions. The parties who purchased and had nails in transit when the Pittsburgh meeting put down the card feel very much saggrieved.

CHIT-CHAT ABOUT MEMPHIS.

I left St. Louis Saturday night by the Iron Mountain route for Memphis, where I arrived Sunday eve. Memphis is the most substantial business place of its size who, even under the most unfavorable circumstances, could not do anything worse who, even under the most unfavorable cir-cumstances, could not do anything worse but to lead the party to a defeat which out to lead the party to a defeat which would be much more honorable than a victory under the leadership of Grant.

This standard-bearer, James Abraham Gaffeld, has elevated himself from a daylaborer to the position of one of the most respected and services.

set the brains of the majority of his party associates it was Garfield who, in company with a few others, courageously and firmly the led his party back from doing irreparable damage to itself.

When President Hayes, ably and engetically assisted by the members of his cabinet, undertook to clean the several departments of the Government of the corruption which had grown high under the administration of Grant, and when he administration of Grant, and when he disa, owing to that, assailed by the whole Grant clique, under the leadership of Gorking, Garfield was one of the few who imply adhered to the President highly approves. The civil service reform, so deeply hated by the triumvirate of corruption—Conkling, Cameron and Loganhas always found in Mr. Garfield an intention of the content of the Conking, Cameron and Loganhas always found in Mr. Garfield an arise and able defender. Garfield will—that is our honest opinion—step into the footsteps of his friend Hayes, if he will be elevated to the position of President of the United States. We trusthim to be possessed of the same good will as Mr. Hayes, and even more firmness and energy.

CROP PROSPECTS.

The crop prospects all through that part of Mississippi are good; wheat in shock; oats turning; plenty of rain, but not too much either for corn or cotton.
